GENERAL PROGRAM INFORMATION

About the Program in Art History
The University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, has offered courses in the history and criticism of art since 1877. A specific curriculum with a specialty in art history appeared with the creation of a Master's program in 1949, and a specialized undergraduate program two years later. A doctoral degree program was initiated in 1969.

The Art History Program is one of the several that comprise the School of Art & Design, alongside programs in studio arts, design, and art education. The School of Art and Design is one of the 12 units within the College of Fine and Applied Arts. The Art History Program does not have separate administrative offices; all School and College official program administration is handled by the staff of the School of Art and Design in offices located in the Art & Design Building.

Two Colleges, Two Undergraduate Majors
Undergraduate students at UIUC may seek a degree in Art History through either the College of Fine and Applied Arts, or the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. The B.F.A degree through the College of Fine and Applied Arts (FAA) requires more units of studio art course work, while the B.A. degree through the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences (LAS) requires more humanities-based course work. Both afford a solid foundation in the field. Students with B.A. and B.F.A. degrees in art history from UIUC have pursued graduate studies, internships, and a range of positions in fields including, but not limited to, the arts and arts administration.

University Library and Museums
With a cataloged collection of more than thirteen million volumes, the University Library is the largest among public universities and the second largest university library in the country. The art and architecture collections include more than 120,000 volumes divided between the main library and the Ricker Library of Art and Architecture. The Rare Book and Manuscript Library is one of the largest in the United States. The two university museums, Krannert Art Museum and the Spurlock Museum, display works from their permanent collections and present a rotating schedule of temporary exhibitions. Major museums in Chicago, St. Louis, and Indianapolis are within two to three hours from Champaign-Urbana.

Faculty and Staff
The Art History Program faculty currently has eight full-time tenured or tenure-track professors with diverse research and teaching areas and interests. Faculty members are affiliated with many interdisciplinary programs that support the teaching of art history. These programs include African-American Studies, Latin American and Caribbean Studies, Department of East Asian Languages and Cultures, Center for East Asian and Pacific Studies, the Unit for Criticism and Interpretive Theory, Gender and Women’s Studies Program, and the Program in Medieval Studies. (The last also offers a certificate in Medieval Studies). Several faculty members with primary appointments in other departments and programs also have affiliations with the Art History Program. For a more detailed description of Art History Program faculty and faculty in other departments who are affiliated with the Program, see Appendix D.
PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS IN BRIEF

Major in BA Degree in Art History (LAS)
To graduate from the university with a Bachelor of Arts in Art History through the College of Liberal Arts and Science (LAS) requires a total of 120 credit hours of study, including at least 48 credit hours of coursework towards the art history major, distributed as follows:
- 30 credit hours in art history courses;
- 15 credit hours in advanced supporting course work in the humanities;
- 3 credit hours in studio art courses

See Appendix A for complete details, or visit: College of Liberal Arts & Sciences Students page http://provost.illinois.edu/ProgramsOfStudy/2013/fall/programs/undergrad/las/art_history.html

Major in BFA Degree in Art History (FAA)
To graduate from the university with a Bachelor of Fine Arts in Art History through the College of Fine and Applied Arts (FAA) requires a total of 122 credit hours of study, including at least 62 credit hours of coursework towards the art history major, distributed as follows:
- 30 credit hours in art history courses
- 26 credit hours in studio art courses
- 6 credit hours of humanities electives

See Appendix B for complete details, or visit:
School of Art & Design: http://www.art.illinois.edu/or the University Program of Studies page (Art History) for the BFA major:
http://provost.illinois.edu/ProgramsOfStudy/2013/fall/programs/undergrad/faa/history_art.html

Minor in Art History
The Minor in Art History, available to undergraduates of any major, across all colleges in the university, requires 20 credit hours of study, distributed as follows:
- 8 credit hours of introductory art history:
- 3 credit hours of ARTH 395: Junior Seminar
- 3 credit hours of 200-400 level art history courses
- 6 credit hours 300-400 level art history courses

See Appendix C for complete details, or visit:
University Program of Studies page (Art History) for the Minor:
http://provost.illinois.edu/ProgramsOfStudy/2013/fall/programs/undergrad/faa/history_art.html#arthistoryminor

Declaring the Art History Minor
Instructions for declaring a minor are available at the Provost's web site along with the necessary forms:
http://www.provost.uiuc.edu/programs/advising/minors.html
Departmental Distinction in Art History, also known as Seniors Honors in Art History, affords art history majors in the Colleges of Fine and Applied Arts (FAA) and Liberal Arts and Science (LAS) the opportunity to crown their undergraduate careers with a Senior Honors Thesis, which is excellent preparation for graduate level work in the field. Working closely with a faculty advisor, thesis students develop and complete an extended research project in art history during their senior year. They typically enroll in 4 to 6 credit hours of independent study coursework carried out over two semesters, in addition to the minimum 48 or 60 hours of art history study required by the BA and BFA majors respectively.

Eligibility and Enrollment

The Honors Thesis is open to undergraduate art history majors with senior standing whose academic records through their junior year demonstrate the ability to perform advanced work. Art History majors for both LAS and FAA are required to have a cumulative grade point average of 3.25 and an Art History grade point average of 3.50.

The following guidelines are written on the assumption that the candidate for honors begins thesis research the fall semester of senior year. They can be adapted to accommodate students who attain senior status at mid-year. Students hoping to write an Honors Thesis should contact the faculty member who works in the area that the student wishes to research to confirm that that professor will be on campus the following year, and that he or she is willing to work with that student as the Thesis Supervisor.

Enrollment for the subsequent year should be as follows: For the fall term of the senior year, LAS candidates should enroll in ARTH 489 (Senior Honors in Art History –B.A.) and FAA candidates should enroll in ARTH 490 (Senior Honors in Art History – B.F.A.) for (usually) 3 credit hours the first semester. To do this, each student should fill out an online “Honors” form (found at: http://www.art.illinois.edu/content/undergraduate/) with a description of the research and writing the student will undertake for honors credit. (Consult Mark Avery in Art & Design 140 (mavery@illinois.edu) with any questions.) Each student’s form will be sent to the supervising faculty member and to the appropriate advisor in FAA or LAS. NOTA BENE: Registration in any independent study course is good for one semester only. Accordingly, an honors candidate must re-register for ARTH 489 or 490 for 2 hours at the beginning of the spring term. The project statement for spring-term registration should reflect any changes in the topic that have been made as a result of the fall term’s research.

Topic and Length of Paper

The primary responsibility for determining the subject of the Honors Thesis rests with the student in conjunction with the faculty Thesis Supervisor. That faculty member is the student’s instructor for the project. No set formula governs the kind of research problem to be undertaken or the length of the final written paper. In past years, Honors Theses have been between 25 to 50 pages long. The parameters and length of the project will be dependent upon the choice of topics/problems being studied, and be established in consultation with the Thesis Supervisor.

Timeline

A timeline should be developed at an early stage of writing to ensure a timely completion of the project (especially important for the spring semester). Due dates vary from year to year. Please check with your individual advisor if you are currently working on an Honors Thesis.
Grading
The Advisor will assign grades to the independent research project for each semester, whether ARTH 489 or 490. When completed, the honors paper will be evaluated by at least two members of the faculty: the Thesis Supervisor and a second reader with relevant expertise.

Departamental Distinction
Distinction is awarded on the basis of both the Honors Thesis and the student’s other course work as an art history major. The level of honors [Distinction] awarded to the candidates will be determined by the Thesis Supervisor and second reader. On the basis of each candidate’s overall record of achievement, the committee will award the candidate with distinction, with high distinction, and with highest distinction in Art History. (This is separate from College “Greek” honors). The candidate’s LAS or FAA advisors will inform the candidate of the committee’s decisions and report the decisions to the Admission Records Officers of the respective colleges.
ADVISING

Undergraduate Art History Advisors

FAA Art History Major:

ART HISTORY STUDENT RESOURCES AT UIUC

SAHA
The Society for Art History and Archaeology (SAHA) is a registered student organization at the University of Illinois/Urbana-Champaign. Our primary goal is to promote interdisciplinary scholarship and new research that broadens our understanding of the visual arts. Each year, SAHA sponsors several lectures by students and professionals; additionally, it holds a biennial symposium open to students in all related disciplines. Membership is free and open to both graduate and undergraduate students.

Art History Paris Program
Since 2012 the Art History Program has had a summer program at the École du Louvre in Paris. The three-week course is open to undergraduate and graduate students, and offers class at the Louvre and other museums around Paris, including the Musée du Louvre, the Musée d'Orsay, the Musée du Quai Branly, the Musée de Cluny, the Musée du Château de Versailles and the Centre Georges Pompidou. The course provides an introduction to museology by having major museum administrators, curators, and other professionals speak to you about the theories that govern their practice and the major problems confronting them in their work. You meet daily with leading world experts in the field. In addition, you live in the middle of Paris. For more information see https://app.studyabroad.illinois.edu/index.cfm?FuseAction=Programs.ViewProgram&Program_ID=10857

The Visual Resources Collection
The Visual Resources Center (VRC) facilitates access to images and other visual formats, provides instruction on using a variety of educational software, works with users on image related research projects, and provides consultation related to digitization best practices. The VRC's growing collection of digital images can be found through ARTstor, an image library of over one million digital images in the arts, architecture, humanities, and sciences with an accessible suite of software tools for teaching and research. Approximately 5,000 images are added each year based on the curriculum of the College of Fine and Applied Arts, faculty requests, and gifts from faculty members. Please feel free to call or email the curator of the collection, Sarah Christensen; phone 217-333-3292; email: schrtn@illinois.edu

A&D Computer Lab Access
Room 100 Art East Annex Studio1; website: http://www.art.illinois.edu/content/resources/computer-labs/
The door to the lecture room/computer lab in has been programmed. Undergrads who have attended a computer lab orientation and paid the computer lab facilities charge have access during the same open lab hours as the A+D building labs. Please do not prop the door open. If you have not taken the orientation session, please contact A + D Facilities Director David Akins at akins@uiuc.edu, or 217-333-6803.

University Library
1408 W. Gregory Dr., Urbana; 217-333-2291; website: http://www.library.illinois.edu/
The University Library is the second largest public university library in the U.S. The University Library is founded in 1867 in the charter establishing the school that became the University of Illinois. The Library opened with the school in 1868 with 1,039 volumes and grows slowly over the next decades. Today, the University Library holds more than thirteen million volumes and 24 million items and materials in all formats, languages, and subjects, including 9 million microforms, 120,000 serials, 148,000 audio-recordings, over 930,000 audiovisual materials, over 280,000 electronic books, 12,000 films, and 650,000 maps. The Library has strengths in many areas, ranging from hard sciences to the humanities. These collections form the bulk of I-Share, the statewide library online catalog. Currently there are 76 I-Share libraries and more than 30 million library items represented in the I-Share catalog. Users at these I-Share libraries may borrow books directly from the 76 I-Share library participants.
Ricker Art and Architecture Library

208 Architecture Building; 217-333-0224; website: http://www.library.uiuc.edu/arx/

The foundation for the Library’s architecture and art collections was laid by the country’s first college graduate of architecture, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign professor Nathan Clifford Ricker (1843-1924), who in 1873 purchased several important architectural treatises and folios. Today, the collections of the Ricker Library of Architecture and Art include more than 120,000 volumes and 33,000 serials (some housed in the Library’s main book stacks), 35,000 microforms, and a small but burgeoning collection of videos. The holdings cover the fields of architecture, architectural history, art, art history, museum studies, and art education.

Rare Book and Manuscript Library

Third floor (Room 346) on the north side of the Main Library at 1408 W. Gregory Drive in Urbana; 217-333-3777; website: http://www.library.illinois.edu/rbx/

The Rare Book and Manuscript Library, also part of the University Library, is one of the largest repositories for rare books and manuscripts in the United States. The collections—nearly half a million volumes and three kilometers of manuscript material—include original illustrated books and rare artists' editions of books from the fifteenth through twentieth centuries, and are strong in the broad areas of literature, history, art, theology, philosophy, technology, and the natural sciences.

The Art History Program sponsors several named lectures each year. These include the Ziff Lecture in Modern art, the Rosemary Coffey Lecture on Medieval/Renaissance art and the Phillip Fehl Lecture on art and culture in the pre-modern world. Additionally, the School of Art and Design sponsors a vigorous program of presentations by visiting artists and designers. All undergraduate majors are warmly encouraged to attend.

Modern Art Colloquium
The Modern Art Colloquium founded in 1999 as a forum for discussing presentations by faculty and graduate students related to modern art, focuses on 20th century and contemporary art. Those who wish to drop in on an occasional basis are welcome as well as those who attend regularly. The participants have been from across campus, with papers or informal works in progress presented by graduate students and faculty in such fields as Communications, Comparative Literature, History, Landscape Architecture, Romance Languages, Urban Planning, and other programs in addition to Art History and Art Studio Practice. The object has been to make these meetings self-contained so that extra reading would not be needed for those on already busy schedules and we have maintained an email notification list with the schedule of presentations. Anyone who wishes to attend is welcome to come along to any or all meetings; if you wish to be on the listserv or to present work please contact Prof. Terri Weissman at tweissma@illinois.edu

SAHA Graduate Student – Faculty Colloquia
These are periodic (about once or twice a semester) informal reunions that allow students and faculty to share aspects of their on-going research and publications, or simply to discuss critical issues. Dates and times will be announced as events are scheduled.

A Word About Invited Speakers And Other Professional Colloquia
The Art History Program, along with the School of Art & Design, invites several speakers each year to present lectures on a broad range of topics. Undergraduate students are strongly encouraged to attend as many of these as their schedules and workloads will allow, including those lectures addressing topics immediately outside of the student’s main interests. These opportunities to hear experts speak about their work are among the many advantages of attending a major research university.
FINANCIAL AID AND CAREER PLANNING

Internships and Career Counseling
Krannert Art Museum and the Spurlock Museum periodically offer internship and volunteering opportunities. Generally, preference has been given to graduate students. However, there have been occasions for advanced undergraduates to serve as volunteers. Students should contact their individual advisors, and the museums themselves for further information. For internships off-campus, please consult your advisor and the College of Fine and Applied Arts’s career services coordinator, Michele Plante (contact information below).

A Word about Graduate School Applications
Students considering pursuing graduate study in art history or related fields at UIUC or elsewhere are warmly encouraged to consult with their Advisor or the Director of Graduate Studies no later than junior year. They will be glad to answer questions about the nature and purpose of graduate study, help you plan your application campaign, and advise you on the materials needed. Students who would like to begin graduate school the fall semester following their graduation will typically need to apply for admission in the fall term of their senior year.

APPENDIX D
FACULTY

Core Faculty in Art History

Anne Burkus-Chasson
Associate Professor Burkus-Chasson received her Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy in the History of Art from the University of California at Berkeley. Before joining the faculty at the University of Illinois, she taught at Grinnell College, the University of Chicago, and Stanford University. She also worked in the Department of Oriental Art at the Yale University Art Gallery. At the University of Illinois, she is affiliated with the Department of East Asian Languages and Cultures and the Center for East Asian and Pacific Studies. Her articles on seventeenth-century Chinese painting have appeared in the Art Bulletin, Art History, Journal of Chinese Literature and Culture, and various exhibition catalogues. She was awarded the Arthur Kingsley Porter Prize by the College Art Association for "Elegant or Common? Chen Hongshou's Birthday Presentation Pictures and His Professional Status," which appeared in the Art Bulletin in June 1994. This, among other writings, have been translated and published in Chinese. A book, entitled Through a Forest of Chancellors: Fugitive Histories in Liu Yuan's "Lingyange," an Illustrated Book from Seventeenth-Century Suzhou (Cambridge: Harvard University Asia Center, 2010), examines illustrated woodblock-printed books and ways of seeing in late imperial China. Other writings on the history of the book have appeared in anthologies edited by Cynthia J. Brokaw and Kai-wing Chow. Her research has been supported by the American Association of University Women, the J. Paul Getty Postdoctoral Fellowship Program, and the Center for Advanced Study at the University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign. She is currently engaged in a research project about Chinese gardens in the context of environmental history and a book-length study about forms of reproduction in 17th-century Chinese painting.

Areli Marina
Associate Professor, Art History and Medieval Studies Program (Ph.D., Institute of Fine Arts, New York University). Dr. Marina’s interest in historic architecture was born on the ramparts of El Morro Castle in her native Puerto Rico. She teaches the art and architecture of Western Europe from the High Middle Ages to the Renaissance, and while at Illinois has been repeatedly named on the List of Teachers Rated as Excellent by students. Dr. Marina’s research examines the intersections of public rhetoric, political authority, and monumental art production in Italy between the medieval and early modern eras, especially in relation to the spatial arts: urbanism, architecture, and sculpture. The American Catholic Historical Association awarded her first book, The Italian Piazza Transformed: Parma in the Communal Age (Penn State University Press, 2012), the 2013 Howard A. Marraro Book Prize for the most distinguished work dealing with Italian or Italo-American history published the previous year. Other recent publications include “The Langobard Revival of Matteo il Magno Visconti, Lord of Milan,” I Tatti Studies in the Italian Renaissance 16, no. 1-2 (Fall 2013): 377-414; and “From the Myth to the Margins: The Patriarch’s Piazza at San Pietro di Castello in Venice,” Renaissance Quarterly 64.2 (2011): 353–429. Her work has been supported by fellowships from the American Academy in Rome, the Getty Foundation, and the Harvard University Center for Italian Renaissance Studies at Villa I Tatti, as well as grants from the Gladys Krieble Delmas Foundation, the Samuel H. Kress Foundation, the Graham Foundation, the National Endowment for the Humanities, and the University of Illinois. Dr. Marina’s current projects include a book-length cultural history of the Italian baptistery from 1000 to 1500, and a study of the material culture of Italian lords during the late Middle Ages. She was treasurer and board member of the Italian Art Society from 2008 to 2012. She is the general editor of the Harvey Miller/Brepols Publishers’ book series “Architecture and the Arts in Early Modern Italy.”

Prita Meier
(PhD, Harvard University). Assistant Professor Meier specializes in African and African Diaspora visual culture. She has research and teaching interests in the cultural dimension of globalization; modernism and postcolonial politics in Africa; east African port cities and cultures of exchange; Islamic arts of Africa, the cultural and aesthetic history of photography in Africa. She is the author of Mobility in Stone: Architecture and Globalization on the Coast of East Africa (forthcoming 2015 with Indiana University Press) and has publications in Art History, African Arts, Nka: Journal of Contemporary African Art, Artforum, and Arab Studies Journal, as well as contributions to several exhibition catalogs and edited books. She also co-curated African Art and the Shape of Time at the University of Michigan Museum of Art. Before coming to UIUC she taught at Wayne State University. She also was a fellow at the Clark Art Institute (2014-2015), Cornell University’s Society for the Humanities (2009-2010) and Johns Hopkins University (2007-2009).

David O’Brien.
Associate Professor (A.B., Harvard University, M.A. and Ph.D., University of Michigan) specializes in European art of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. He is the author of After the Revolution: Antoine-Jean Gros, Painting, and Propaganda under Napoleon (Penn State University Press, 2006; French translation published by Editions Gallimard, 2006), and his articles have appeared in Burlington Magazine, French Historical Studies, French History, and other journals and exhibition catalogs. Professor O’Brien has a secondary interest in contemporary art. With David Prochaska he has published Beyond East and West: Seven Transnational Artists (University of Washington Press, 2004). He is co-editor, with Vernon Burton, of Remembering Brown at Fifty: The University of Illinois Commemorates Brown v Board of Education (University of Illinois Press, 2010), which includes works and essays by artists, writers, scholars and activists about the landmark Supreme Court decision.

Kristin Romberg
(B.A., University of Virginia; M.A. and Ph.D., Columbia University) Assistant Professor Kristin Romberg specializes in modern and contemporary art, with particular focus on media and design. Her current book project re-examines Russian constructivism as an aesthetics of embeddedness by exploring Gan’s work as political organizer and maker of mass-media objects. Her articles have appeared in both English and Russian publications, including October and the anthology Formy i struktury. Antologiia rossiiskogo modernizma (Forms and Structures: Anthology of Russian Modernism, 2013). In 2005, she was the curator, along with Richard Anderson, of the exhibition Architecture in Print: Design and Debate in the Soviet Union, 1919-1935 at Columbia University’s Wallach Art Gallery. Professor Romberg’s research has been supported by the Center for Advanced Study in the Visual Arts, American Council of Teachers of Russian, the Harriman Institute, Center for the Study of Modern Art at the Phillips Collection, George Washington University, and the Getty Research Institute.

Lisa Rosenthal
(Ph.D., University of California at Berkeley) Associate Professor, Art History Program, holds affiliated appointments in the Gender and Women’s Studies Department and in the Unit for Criticism and Interpretive Theory. Her teaching areas broadly span fifteenth to seventeenth century European art with a particular focus on Baroque art and art theory. Her research interests include gender and politics in seventeenth-century Dutch and Flemish painting and printmaking, theories of visual allegory, notions of the artist in early modern culture, art collecting, and the functions of art in the domestic sphere. She is the author of Gender, Politics, and Allegory in the Art of Rubens (Cambridge University Press, 2005) and is the co-editor of Early Modern Visual Allegory: Embodying Meaning (Ashgate, 2007). Her articles have appeared in Art History, The Oxford Art Journal, The Annual Bulletin of the Antwerp Royal Fine Arts Museum, and the Nederlands Kunsthistorisch Jaarboek as well as in exhibition catalogues and other anthologies. She is a past recipient of a J. Paul Getty Postdoctoral Fellowship in the History of Art and the Humanities, an Arnold O. Beckman Award from the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign and a UIUC Center for Advanced Study Fellowship. Her current work combines her interests in seventeenth-century Flemish gallery pictures and in the curiosity cabinet in the contemporary imagination.

Oscar E. Vázquez
Associate Professor, Ph.D. University of California, Santa Barbara. Prof. Vázquez holds affiliate appointments with the Center for Latin American Caribbean Studies, the Department of Spanish and Portuguese, and the Latina/o Studies Department. His studies in late eighteenth through early twentieth century Spanish and Latin American visual cultures have examined the roles of collections, markets and patronage systems, as well as academies, pedagogy and state administrations in the production and historiography of art. His research and teaching interests range from contemporary graffiti and murals to the transformations in visual studies between Latin American and Iberian scholarship. He has published essays in Art History, Art Journal, Word and Image, and in edited anthologies. He is author of Inventing the Art Collection: patrons, markets, and the state in nineteenth-century Spain (Pennsylvania State University Press, 2001) and The End, Again. Degeneration and Visual Culture in Modern Spain (forthcoming; Pennsylvania State University Press).
Terri Weissman
Terri Weissman is Associate Professor of Art History in the School of Art and Design at the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign. She teaches modern and contemporary art history, the history of photography and the history of design; she is also affiliated with the University of Illinois’s Unit for Criticism and Interpretative Theory. Weissman is the author of The Realisms of Berenice Abbott: Documentary Photography and Political Action (University of California Press, 2011), which examines the successes and failures of Abbott’s realist, communicatively oriented model of documentary photography. She also served as the co-curator and co-author for the exhibition and accompanying publication American Modern: Documentary Photographs by Abbott, Evans, and Bourke-White (University of California Press, 2010). Her articles and reviews have appeared in edited volumes such as Contemporary Art: 1989 to the Present and journals such as Visual Resources, Media-N, caa.reviews, ArtNexus, Grove Art Online, American Historical Review, SCOPE, and Third Text. Weissman’s current book-length project investigates the visual culture of social movements in the United States after the election of Ronald Reagan in 1980, especially those that are clearly conscious of—and strategic about—being represented in the media. She is also at work on an introductory history of photography textbook with Erina Duganne titled, Global Photography: A Critical History (Bloomsbury, 2017). Her work has been supported by the O’Keeffe Research Center, the Smithsonian, the Center for Advanced Study in the Visual Arts at the National Gallery of Art, the National Endowment for the Arts, and the Center for Advanced Study at the University of Illinois.

Adjunct and Affiliated Faculty

Jennifer Burns
Instructor in the School of Art + Design, holds a Ph.D. from the Graduate Center of the City University of New York. Specializing in the art of the 1960s to the present, she also has experience in feature film development and production. She has taught art history, visual culture, and art education at Mount Holyoke College, Teachers College, Columbia University, and the Bard Center for Curatorial Studies before coming to Illinois. She teaches and researches visual phenomena across boundaries of economics, politics, and aesthetics, with a particular focus on varieties of capitalist realism and the racial politics of the “post-racial” United States. Educating for social justice remains a core interest with teaching stints for the Odyssey Project and Education Justice Project.

Cara Finnegan
Associate Professor, Communication; Ph.D., Northwestern University. Conrad Humanities Professorial Scholar, College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. Zero-time appointments in Art History and Gender and Women's Studies and core faculty in the Center for Writing Studies. Research and teaching interests: history of U.S. visual culture (esp. late 19th and early 20th centuries); photography; communication history; rhetoric; media and politics; relationships between visual culture and print culture. Publications include Making Photography Matter: A Viewer's History from the Civil War to the Great Depression (Illinois, 2015); Picturing Poverty: Print Culture and FSA Photographs (Smithsonian, 2003); and Visual Rhetoric: A Reader in Communication and American Culture (co-editor; Sage, 2008).

David L. Hays
Amy L. Powell
Amy L. Powell is curator of modern and contemporary art at Krannert Art Museum at the University of Illinois. Her research on global contemporary art and film has led to several exhibitions, including Zineb Sedira: Lighthouse in the Sea of Time, Clarissa Tossin: Blind Spot, Anna Campbell: Under Water and Into the Sunset, and Antena @ Blaffer, which featured a bookspace, group exhibition, series of public programs, and forthcoming book with the language experimentation and language justice collaborative Antena, comprised of poets, translators, and activist interpreters Jen Hofer and John Pluecker. Powell’s current projects include Time / Image, an international group exhibition of artworks and films with deep investments in questions of time, and a solo exhibition of new videos and photographs by Zina Saro-Wiwa interrogating self and environment in the Niger Delta region of Nigeria. Both exhibitions will premiere at Blaffer Art Museum at the University of Houston 2015, where Powell was previously Cynthia Woods Mitchell curatorial fellow, before traveling to Krannert Art Museum in 2016. Powell completed a Ph.D. in art history at the University of Wisconsin-Madison in 2012, where her research was supported by a Chancellor’s Fellowship and the Institute for Research in the Humanities. From 2010 to 2011 she was Smithsonian Predoctoral Fellow at the National Museum of African Art in Washington, DC. In 2014 she was awarded a curatorial research grant from The Andy Warhol Foundation for the Visual Arts for her preparation of a solo exhibition by Zina Saro-Wiwa. Her essays, exhibition and book reviews have appeared in African Arts, Chicago Art Journal, Invisible Culture, and Grove Art Online.

D. Fairchild Ruggles
Professor of Landscape Architecture, (A.B. Harvard, M.A. and Ph.D. University of Pennsylvania), is the author of the award-winning books Gardens, Landscape, and Vision in the Palaces of Islamic Spain (2000) and Islamic Gardens and Landscapes (2008; Japanese translation 2012; Turkish translation forthcoming). Her most recent publication is The Aga Khan Museum Guide (2014), co-authored with Henry Kim, Ruba Kana’an, and Philip Jodido. She has edited or co-edited nine other books and journals and written more than fifty articles on a variety of topics ranging from the three cultures of medieval Spain, the role of vision in architecture and landscape, gardens, cultural heritage, and gender history. In Islamic and Middle Eastern Studies, her primary areas of study are art, architecture, and landscape history of Islamic Spain and South Asia. She has lectured extensively in the US as well as internationally. She has appeared in numerous documentary films about art, and in 2013 she wrote and presented seven short films on Islamic art and culture for the Muslim Journeys Bookshelf of the Bridging Cultures Project of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

John Senseney
Associate Professor of Architectural History, School of Architecture. Ph.D., University of California at Santa Barbara. Prof. Senseney is a specialist in ancient art and architecture, with particular interests in Greek, Etruscan, and Roman art, their Near Eastern background, and the impact of building on ancient religion and conceptions of the body and nature. He is Book Reviews Editor for pre-1750 Europe, Asia, and Africa for the Journal of the Society of Architectural Historians, and is the author of The Art of Building in the Classical World: Vision, Craftsmanship, and Linear Perspective in Greek and Roman Architecture (Cambridge University Press, 2011).
